New Administration Building, Slade Point QLD

On finding the old mushroom factory in David Muir Street, QCCS Director Craig Bogaarts had a vision to renovate the factory and transform it into much needed offices for the business. The idea was developed firstly into a digital version through CAD, and then made a reality with skilled construction by QCCS personnel. The original building consisted of 950m<sup>2</sup> built cool rooms and administration facility. New floor slabs and roof frame were constructed, with awnings over the front and rear entry, and new doors and windows were cut through the existing wall panels. The transformed building would become the central hub of QCCS Operations. The space is vast, light and airy; and comes complete with a gym, shower and fully equipped kitchen.
